

From the Coaching Desk of the 2016 Ohio Valley Conference Champions:

"It is promising to see this team score as often as they are scoring. Our success though will be determined on the other end. Our defense is starting to improve, but as we start conference play will need to be taken up to a higher level. Starting conference play is always exciting. Its time to put the non-conference schedule aside and make another run in the OVC tournament!"

Thank you for your support

January Activities

The Governors are finally back in action at home as they begin conference play. The previous road trip was full of hard fought games and several down-to-the-wire finishes. With those games in the rear view it is time for the most important season and that is conference season. Last year the Govs made it to the OVC tournament and won it. The New Years resolution this year is to be more consistent during the conference season and make the road a little easier for the tournament run. The Govs have proven they can score a lot of points, but defense will be the biggest issue when it comes to having success. Come support Austin Peay and be a part of a great program!

Starting the first week of January Govs are making stops at Liberty Elementary, Manna Cafe, and Hilldale Hoops to support our community. The community service will run all the way to the end April. The Govs are excited to be back out in the community and look forward to making stops near you in the future!

Player Focus: Zach Glotta

We commend Zach for being nominated Allstate National Association of Basketball Coaches good works team. This award recognizes players at all levels of college basketball whose charitable involvement and altruistic acts stand out among all other student athletes. Glotta has been a part of every possible community service initiative that the Governors have participated in since he arrived on campus. In addition he works with FCA into the summer, serving as a huddle leader at FCA camp at Lee University. Thank you Zach for representing Austin Peay Basketball!
